STUDIED REVISION OF PACT
OF PEACE LEAGUE URGED
BY G. O. P. LEADER LODGESenator Points Out Pitfalls in Proposed Constitution; Asks Time and Caution in Drafting
Such Everlasting Promises.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Feb. 28.—Senator Lodge of Massachusetts solemnly warned the American people today to weigh carefully the constitution of the league of nations and to insist on its fundamental provisions. Speaking in the senate, the republican floor leader declared his conviction that instead of safeguarding the peace of the world the league as now planned would endanger it by creating a new source of international conflict.

The Massachusetts senator declared that as now drafted the constitution would contravene the Monroe doctrine, a strike at America's sovereignty in America in all foreign disputes, substitute internationalism for nationalism and be of benefit principally to Europe.

In Summary With Aim.
Expressing complete sympathy with the popular demand and efforts toward an agreement for world peace, Senator Lodge said he was not prepared to say that there could not be a concert of the nations to safeguard against war, but he insisted that the agreement for such a concert should be drawn up calmly and deliberately when the world was at peace and not hastily when war still existed. Senator Lodge, who is expected to be chairman of the foreign relations committee in the next senate, which will act on the peace treaty and any plan for a league of nations was given close attention by senators and galleries.Would Foster Germany.
"Much time has been wasted," he said. "The delays have bred restlessness and confusion everywhere. Germany is lifting her head again. The whimpering after defeat is changing to threats. She is seeking to annex 9,000,000 Germans in Austria. She is drawing up calmly and deliberately when the world was at peace and not hastily when war still existed. Senator Lodge, who is expected to be chairman of the foreign relations committee in the next senate, which will act on the peace treaty and any plan for a league of nations was given close attention by senators and galleries.

There is an issue involved in the league constitution presented to us which overshadows all others," said Senator Lodge yesterday. "It is the part now for the first time from the foreign policies of Washington. We are invited to move away from George Washington toward the sinister figure of Trotsky, the champion of internationalism."

"We have in this country a government of the people, for the people and by the people, the freest and best government in the world, and we are the great rampart today against the anarchy and disorder which have taken possession of Russia and are trying to invade every other peaceful country in the world. For Lincoln's government, of the people, for the people and by the people, we are asked to substitute in the United States on many vital points, government of, for and by other people. Pause and consider well before you take this fateful step."

Warns Against Faulty Bridge.
"We must build no bridges across the chasm which now separates American freedom and order from Russian anarchy and destruction. We must see to it that the democracy of the United States, which has prospered some mightily in the past, is not drawn by any hasty error or by any glittering delusions, through specious devices of supernatural government under the toils of international socialism and anarchy."

Lodge included a specific provision excluding the Monroe doctrine from the league's purview. This, he said, could be done in three lines. Immigration and other laws and domestic questions and those vital to national existence also should be excluded from the league's jurisdiction, he said, adding: "There should be some definite provision for peaceful withdrawal from the league of any nation that desires to withdraw."

Wants Definite Understanding.
"Let us have a definite statement as to whether the league is to have an international force of its own or is to have the power to summon the armed forces of the different member nations."

"Let it be stated in plain language whether the 'measures,' the 'recommendations,' or suggestions of the league are open to amendment and change by members and are to compel them to do what the league delegates and executive council determine."

Unless some better constitution for the league is open to amendment and change by members and are to compel them to do what the league delegates and executive council determine."

TOBACCO
WAREHOUSECOUNTY GROWERS SECURE
JANESVILLE BUILDING TO TAKE CARE OF CROP.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Culver Heads Corporation; Farmers to Be Charged Only Actual Cost of Curing; Open To All.

Tobacco growers of Rock county have elected the De Forest warehouse at the foot of South Franklin street and will open it up for active operation Monday morning. Only a small force of sorters will be placed on the job Monday but it is planned to increase the size of it as soon as conditions are adjusted and the farmers begin bringing in their tobacco in large quantities.

But it is hoped to obtain one early next week. Many directors of the Rock County Tobacco Growers' association will probably be on hand Monday to direct the receiving and sorting work.

Culver Chosen President.
C. E. Culver was elected president of the corporation at the meeting of the board of directors yesterday afternoon. Three other officers were elected as follows: T. M. B. Gunn, vice-president; William Pembor, secretary and Charles Shoemaker, treasurer.

It is estimated that 1,800 cases can be stored in the warehouse which has been secured, and that 30 sorters can be accommodated. The building is a large one and although it has not been used for several years it is in good condition and doubtless will prove equal to the emergency.

Is Considered Important.
Although this is not the first time that farmers have organized to take care of their own tobacco crops in this county, it is considered an important event in the history of the growers. A number of years ago a similar association was formed but the warehouse was destroyed by fire and nothing has since been done by the growers since that time.Result of Efforts.
The decision to open the warehouse Monday came after three weeks of work by the growers. Believing that they were not being offered enough money per pound for their tobacco by the buyers, the growers met and decided to make plans for curing and selling their own product. After numerous meetings in which a number of good sized stumbling blocks were encountered a definite plan was finally hit upon. It was decided to incorporate the association at $2,000 sell shares of stock at $25 each and get busy as soon as possible. For each pound of stock was sold and five directors were elected. The directors then rented the warehouse and decided to begin receiving tobacco from the growers.Charge with Cost Price.
The farmers will be charged with only the actual cost of curing the tobacco. Each grower will be privileged to bring in his crop whenever he will hold stock in the corporation.

"All will be treated alike," said T. M. B. Gunn, yesterday. "We are working for a common cause and we want all growers to benefit."

HOSPITAL TWICE AS BIG, DECIDES BOARD

A hospital addition of approximately 150 beds will be built as the weather becomes favorable for construction, according to a decision reached by the board of directors of the new hospital last night. The board met with a committee of doctors at dinner, followed by a business meeting.

Bachus &amp; Pfaffler, Milwaukee architects, opened an office in Janesville today, will make sketches of the addition immediately and submit them to the board at a meeting next Thursday.

The contract for the work will probably be let within a few days. The addition will be built south of the present structure on property recently purchased by the board. It will be three stories high and arranged so that an additional floor may be added when needed.

The present hospital is entirely inadequate to handle the average two or three day stay. Victims of the recent automobile accident at South Janesville had to be quartered in the halls of the hospital. The new building will be three stories high and arranged so that an additional floor may be added when needed.

SPRING PULLETS PAY MOST, RECORDS SHOW

Pullets hatched during March, April and May have twice as long a laying period and lay twice as many eggs as pullets hatched later in the summer according to trials conducted by the poultry department of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, results of which have just been received by County Agent R. E. Acheson. Records of hens that have laid more than 300 eggs each show that all of them began laying before December of their first year and that they were all hatched in the spring months.

All of these 200-egg hens laid steadily through the late fall and winter months while pullets hatched later in the summer did not begin to lay until spring. The second fall it was observed that pullets hatched in the preceding summer stopped laying about the same time as those hatched a few months earlier. The early hatched pullets produce eggs when the market most demands them. The price is correspondingly high.

Housing to Be Topic at Council Luncheon

An open forum for the discussion of the Janesville Housing corporation will be held following the Monday luncheon of the members' council of the Chamber of Commerce. It was announced today that the new organization's importance outranks any speaker who might address the men, the committee in charge decided.

TRI-COUNTY FARMERS MEETING HEARS HINTS ON PIGS AND CHICKENS

(By a Staff Correspondent).

Whitewater, Feb. 28.—The pigs and chickens came in for their share of notice at this morning's session of the two-day meeting of farmers of Jefferson, Rock and Walworth counties, meeting here since yesterday.

Prof. Duncan Reed, Madison; L. L. Oldham, Elkhorn; B. Morrison, Madison; Mrs. Nellie Kedzie Jones, Madison; A. J. Garke, Jefferson; and Miss Grace Johnson, Elkhorn, were the speakers for the afternoon.

The speakers for the men at the Strand, and the women at the city hall.

In discussing poultry management before the men's meeting this morning, Prof. Duncan Reed, University College of Agriculture, emphasized the need of sufficient ventilation in poultry houses.

Urges More Ventilation. He spoke in part as follows: "The poultry house must be ventilated. Have a good big opening and keep it open. If the wind blows put a bran sack or white muslin over it. Have a dry fly for the air to come in. The door to be at least 8 inches above the soil."

"Hatch early in the spring so the pullets will be well grown before cold weather. If you wait to make money make the poultry lay while eggs are high and scarce. The average pullet starts to lay when 7 months old. Seventy-six eggs in an average production, 100 is good, 150 very profitable. The record pullet lays 330 eggs in 365 days."

"The middle of March to the first of May is the best time to hatch. Pymouth Rocks or White Rocks. Hatch Leghorns a little later. Raise the hen as cheaply as possible. After September feed them. Put grain in the poultry house under a layer of straw and let them scratch for it."

Morrison Talks on Pigs. Forage crop for pigs was explained by B. B. Morrison. He emphasized the particular value of the alfalfa. Kind of feed by the use of pullets. Practical talk on the equipment for home dressmaking was given by Miss Grace Johnson, Walworth county demonstration agent, at morning meeting of the women in the city hall.

The Thursday evening meeting was well attended and the audience enjoyed the community music led by Miss Ethel Main and the High School Glee club, as well as the pictures, "Love and the Jersey," telling the story of the effect of the scrub cow on the lives of many an ignorant farmer.

A. G. Glover, Fort Atkinson, gave the address of the evening, his subject being, "Readjustment in Agriculture." Mr. Glover said he did not favor government control, that would force all people to live as one great family under one management for if two people do not live under the same roof peacefully how can many?

He spoke for the freedom of the old law of supply and demand. A. G. Glover said the government should fulfill its promise to the wheat growers, guaranteeing profit to one and not to all was unwise, he said.

Scores 8-Hour Demand. "The demand for the 8-hour day

ROCK COUNTY W. C. T. U. HOLDS BOARD MEETING

The mid-winter board meeting of the W. C. T. U. organization of Rock county was held here at the Methodist church, Thursday afternoon.

Representatives from the local unions of Beloit, Janesville, Clinton, Milton and Milton Junction, Evansville, Edgerton and Lima Center were present.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Lucy Dickinson, Edgerton, who is president of Rock county unions.

Mrs. Dickinson mentioned the fact that the secretary of state had presented Miss Gordon, National W. C. T. U. president, with the pen with which he signed the prohibition amendment.

She also read an invitation written by August Bush, St. Louis, to Miss Gordon, expressing the hope that she would be present at the national W. C. T. U. convention to be held in St. Louis next fall, wishing success to the temperance cause, and extending the courtesies of his new "bevo" plant to the convention.

Mrs. Peoples, Evansville, read an amusing obituary of John Barleycorn. Mrs. Annie Warren, state vice-president, Stoughton, gave an interesting address on the three great phases of temperance work for the future, mentioning law enforcement, stating the importance of electing men to office who can be depended upon to enforce the laws after they are passed, pointing out that many patent medicines and even flavoring extracts would be resorted to quench thirst in the future. She also mentioned the $1,000,000 fund which is to be devoted to the campaign to make the world dry by 1925, stating that Canada will be dry on May 1, and mentioning other countries that will follow.

Mrs. O. D. Bates, the local president, read a communication from Mrs. E. W. Follett, state secretary, stating that Mrs. Linnie Carl, a national lecturer, would enter the state in March and that Janesville might have an opportunity to hear her.

The local union served a luncheon to the visiting delegates at noon with 25 present.

means less efficiency," he contended. "The prosperous farmer puts in 3,000 hours a year, the ordinary farmer 2,000 hours, while the shiftless, only 1,000. Every man who succeeded puts in more than 8 hours."

But the government will some time take charge of the soil and prevent one generation from robbing it of its nutriment. The eastern part of Ohio still shows the mark of the Yankee farmer, who preferred to move his farm rather than haul the manure that accumulated.

"The average income of the city family is $300. What sensible farmer would exchange? Let the work of the county agents continue. Also farmers' organizations, but keep them out of politics. Let them confine their work to better business methods and more efficiency."

Jesse Earle is a business visitor in Beloit today.

Notice: There will be a meeting of Harmony Grove, No. 68, Friday evening, Feb. 28, at Eagles' hall. Henrietta Kruse, Clerk.

FARMERS ASK LIGHT TURNED ON FACTORIES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Feb. 28.—Farm machinery manufacturers of the state appeared before the assembly committee on agriculture Thursday afternoon in opposition to the Bennett resolution for an investigation of the feasibility of establishing a plant at Waupun penitentiary for the manufacturing of the farm machines by prison labor.

The investigation was favored by J. N. Tittlemore, Omro, president of the American Society of Equity. He said that the resolution was fair; that it would show the cost of manufacturing those machines and would disclose as to whether the farmers were being over-charged.

E. H. Clausen, Horicon, of the Van Brunt company, manufacturers of seeders, appeared in opposition to the resolution. He declared that any investigation made and reported back to this legislature would be shallow.

The investigation would be shallow, he said, because the federal trade commission was now conducting an exhaustive investigation and there was no demand for such an investigation in the state. He said that the farm machinery department of the Minnesota state prison had been operated at a loss of $13,269.

"The passage of such a resolution will have a demoralizing effect on business," declared H. G. Nuss, secretary of the Wisconsin Implement Dealers' association.

"All we want is to have the light turned on," declared J. N. Tittlemore. "If the farmers get these facts they will tell whether it is best to establish a farm machinery plant at Waupun or not."

County Past Noble Grand Holds Annual Meeting Here

The Rock County Past Noble Grand association was held at the West Side L. O. O. F. hall, Thursday. It was their annual banquet served at one o'clock.

Besides the regular members, there was a large attendance from Beloit, Milton, Evansville and Orfordville. In the afternoon the regular meeting was held followed by a program. Mrs. Carrie Glen gave an original poem; Mrs. Wells, Orfordville, a reading; Mrs. Burtness, a song; Mrs. Dickinson gave the question box. Later an election of officers was held. Those elected were Mrs. Ida Fox, president; Mrs. Olive Whaley, secretary and Mrs. Mary Morse, treasurer.

BELOIT AND KENOSHA ON TOP; JANESVILLE MAN WINS PRAISE

To Beloit and Kenosha goes the honor of having the largest percent of population subscribing to the Fourth Liberty loan, in cities of 10,000 and over in Wisconsin, Beloit heading the list with a percentage of 64.51, and Kenosha following, a close second, with 63.11.

Beloit and Kenosha, because of this achievement, will be entitled to name two ships now being constructed by the United States government, in accordance with the offer emanating from Washington at the beginning of the Fourth Liberty loan campaign.

The brilliant results achieved in Beloit were the direct result of systematic and thorough organization, due to the efforts of George S. Wolcott, Federal Reserve Liberty Loan organizer, together with the entire city organizations.

Mr. G. Jeffris, Janesville, is chairman of the Rock County Liberty loan organization, having efficiently acted in that capacity in the second, third and fourth Liberty loan campaigns. Charles C. Brown, president of the First National Bank of Kenosha, has been chairman of the Kenosha County Liberty Loan organization in all four loan campaigns.

LEGISLATURE FAVORS U. S. LABOR BUREAUS

As a result of pressure throughout the state urging the continuance of federal employment agencies, the state legislature yesterday morning passed a resolution asking that appropriation for the bureau be made. A telegram announcing the legislature's action was received yesterday by Fred J. Schmitt, superintendent of the Janesville office.

Copies of telegrams from the Chamber of Commerce, the Red Cross, Eagles, Y. M. C. A. and other local organizations were sent to Mr. Pettet, and had weight in causing the introduction of the bill asking appropriation for continuance.

The bill states that "such employment service is required now as never before due to the fact that we are demobilizing hundreds of thousands of men from military into industrial life."

CASH OR CREDIT

One of the tendencies of the age is the desire of people to live beyond their means—to make credit take the place of cash—to have debts rather than a balance in bank. Credit has ruined thousands. A Bank Account has never ruined any one. You can always get credit when you have a Bank Account. You cannot always get credit without one. Why not begin your account here? Debts or Dollars—you can accumulate either. Which in the years to come will give you the most satisfaction?

I have no credit anywhere. How should I? I have never stooped to the means of acquiring it—Horace Walpole.

MYERS THEATRE

Soldier Boy Minstrels Coming

Uncle Sam's own soldier boy minstrels will be with us 25 shows next Sunday, matinee and night, when they will give their famous minstrel performance. Everyone of these boys fought for us; they have laid down their guns and now are coming to cheer us with their big tin can show. It must not be mistaken that just because these are battle scarred heroes, that they cannot entertain, for many of these boys were ranked among the best in the theatrical world prior to their enlistment. In every one of the cities that the boys have thus far visited, they have met with big success, and in almost every instance have been turned away. It is certain that everyone in this city will want to see these distinguished soldiers and it will be well for all to secure their seats well in advance, as it is expected that over a thousand will be large enough to accommodate all that will take advantage of this event.

MYERS THEATRE

The much heralded farce, "The Very Idea," which will come to the Myers Theatre tonight is the farce that was produced at the Astor Theatre, New York and ran for the entire season to capacity houses nightly. It will be produced with an exceptionally strong cast containing the best light comedians on the stage today.

"The Very Idea" is an adroit piece of work, and is continuously laugh provoking. The basis of the story is a childless couple. A brother whose hobby is eugenics undertakes to supply the couple with an acceptable and trustworthy infant and then persuades them to have a child. His choice falls upon his own chauffeur and the young couple's maid, who for the sake of convention which not even a eugenic couple can completely ignore, happen to be about to wed. The pride of the father and the various little deceptions which the couple are compelled to practice furnish a majority of fun and there is not unexpected denouement when the infant—not fuses to surrender her infant—not for the promised $15,000. Nor is the news which the young wife tells her husband as the curtain falls entirely a surprise to the audience.

Upon this theme and with the assistance of a splendid cast, William Le Baron, its author has built an uproarious comedy. "The Very Idea" will get a laugh out of everyone, and a couple of hundred off of almost anyone else.

Prize Play; Prize Punch

Three souls in the iron grip of modern circumstances—a simple, devoted old woman; a man who has gained worldly eminence, despite the skeleton in the closet; and a girl handicapped by adverse circumstances—each telling the innermost secret of a bitter experience, and eventually finding a way to face life with renewed courage. Here is crystallized the big emotional spirit of "Common Clay," A. H. Woods' screen presentation of the Harvard prize play by Cleves Kinkead, and featuring Fannie Ward. And that it is a play with a real punch is attested by the fact that it ran for a solid year on the New York stage and was played, for three years following by six companies in every city in the United States and Canada, during which time it is estimated that more than five million persons witnessed it.

of the greatest problems of the big cities—The Girl, handicapped by poverty, who is struggling along without proper safeguards. It has been widely discussed in the newspapers, by social welfare and civic organizations and made the text of discourses from many pulpits. This is no because "Common Clay" has to do with stark realities that cannot be overlooked or lightly brushed aside. It deals with souls in travail and good endeavor combating the evil.

Mrs. Ward in this seven-act Pathe special has done some of the most appealing emotional work in her entire career on the stage and the screen. She will be shown at the Apollo theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

ALLIES PLAN TO ISOLATE BOLSHIEVSKI

Since armed intervention in Russia by the allies seems impractical, the statesmen at Paris are reported to have settled upon the expedient of isolating the Bolshieviski. According to reports from the peace conference, the great powers will give all aid needed to Poland and to the governments of Archangel, the Baltic provinces, Omsk, and southern Russia for the purpose of placing a barrier around the Lening government.

A WOMAN'S BUSINESS

OFF THE ROAD.
Almost the first demand of Janet as editor of "Woman" was a pressing call for her to make a trip to Philadelphia. An international congress of women was in session there and the question arose of making "Woman" the official organ of the great feminist movement represented at the congress. It was an opportunity for the magazine of the most valuable kind.

"I'm afraid we'll both have to go," Roy Nicoll said to Janet. "There are considerations of business that I simply must attend to in this matter. And the women will want to see the personality which is to interpret them. The official organ to you see you've got to be there, too!"

Janet nodded. She realized the call was on her as a business woman and she obeyed it without quinquish hesitation.

Nicoll looked at his watch. "If we go in my car," he said, "we'll have half an hour and get there in time for the evening session. The committee takes up the matter to-night. The convention will act on it tomorrow morning and you'll have to see a few words of this matter goes through as it will. So you'll have to stay over. Shall you need much time to pack your bag?" he said.

Janet was already putting on her hat and coat. "I can be ready in a half hour," she said.

"I'll be at your house in the machine, then," Nicoll said. Janet briefly started for her home.

She found Walt doggedly at work, against the grain, as she knew from his expression. The energy of despair was upon him. He had risen at dawn and worked till late for days. The only relaxation he permitted himself was the hour at their evening meal. It almost tore him to pieces to leave him even for a night. But she told him in a few words what was taking her and Nicoll out of town, and Walt nodded briefly.

"Good luck," he said, kissing her at the door, and smiling with an effort that taxed all his strength.

"And to you, my dearest dear!" she cried from a heart so full of sympathy for him that it was all she could do not to fling off her wraps and refuse to go on the errand—so typical of all that took her out of her life. But she had put weakness and sentimentality aside in taking this big work upon herself, and she must go through with it manfully. She kissed Walt again, gave a final pat on his cheek and dashed off.

It was four in the afternoon when she and Nicoll dashed off in his machine. Glimmering stormclouds gave the aspect of late dusk.

"We'll be racing a storm," Nicoll said, glancing at the sky. "That's why I took the closed car." By the time they had struck the sparsely peopled part of their run night had closed in. The powerful headlights of Nicoll's car showed the only light about them. The prodigious howling wind turned to crashing thunder. Rain broke down upon them like a cloudburst. Lightning dimmed the guiding power of the lamps of the car. Nicoll had stopped talking of the business ahead of them and grew silent, his whole thought apparently on the motor. Something was troubling him.

"Is there anything—anything not on schedule?" Janet laughed nervously, feeling that there was very much in their situation which was out of the ordinary.

"Well—this road doesn't seem to be as smooth as a main road should be," Nicoll said, peering out into the storm. He had slowed the car considerably. "I'm sure," followed the right course," he added in a tone whose anxiety showed he was not quite sure.

Suddenly there was a severe shock, the machine turned at right angles to its course and stopped dead.

"Hit something, I'm afraid!" Nicoll said, shutting off the power. He climbed out of the blue triangle of light and stepped into the storm. Janet heard him moving around the end of the car. Then only the storm sounded. After a long wait Nicoll came back, drenched.

"I'm afraid we're in trouble," he said. "Brakes bent and we're off the road."

To What Lengths Will Fringe Grow

By ELOISE.

Did you hear somebody say that fringe was going out? So did I, but there must be a mistake because the fringe has at least three new models with fringe actually running right over the skirt and blouse. Two of the frocks are afternoon gowns and the fringe is looped up and fastened instead of being allowed to hang loose. This makes it look more like tiny bands of curled ostrich tips than fringe.

The other frock is pictured here and it shows to what lengths fringe will go to be fashionable. Heavy corded fringe forms a veritable overskirt on the Belgian blue tulle dress. The frock is built on very simple lines resembling a coat dress. The odd invertible collar and the snug cuffs are trimmed with narrow white organdie ruffles. The shopkeeper pronounced the frock a perfect costume for the morning or afternoon stroll on the board walk.

The little turban worn in Belgian he caterpillar array with huge velvet flowers fastened flat against the crown.

Men and Needles.
Some men are like rusty needles; the best way to clean and brighten them is with work.—Youth's Companion.

"Let the Sunshine In."
"It is well known," says the Chicago health bulletin, "that plants will not thrive without sunshine. The same is true of human beings. The home and workshop should have plenty of sunshine."

ONLY A NEW PAIR OF BED SLIPPERS.

A few evenings ago I happened to be in the home of one of my neighbors at the hour when the five-year-old daughter of the house had been getting ready for bed and came to say "Goodnight" to her mother. She climbed up into the latter's lap, and as she sat there, her mother noticed that a small pink toe was protruding through one of the little blue bed slippers.

She bent and touched it. "You'll have to have a new pair of bed slippers, daughter," she said. "I must put them on my shopping list."

To Be Able to Say that Without a Sigh. She spoke quite placidly, and suddenly with much force there came to me this thought, "I wonder if she realizes how tremendously blessed she is to be able to say that without a sigh?"

Just think, a half worn shoe to this woman means nothing but a couple of words written on her shopping list, an order to a clerk, and finally a signed check. It does not mean a worried wonder where the extra money is to come from, a weary reminder of the eternal uphill struggle, or an anxious questioning as to whether the shoe cannot be made to hold out until Christmas when an uncle or aunt may be induced to replace it.

The Half Worn Slipper is a Symbol. Of course, the half worn slipper is a symbol of the half worn things in the household that are forever calling to the housemother their warning of needed renewals. There's the dining room rug that really ought to have been renewed two seasons ago and simply can't last another season; there's Robert's best suit out of which he persists in growing, with a speed that fills his mother's heart equally with pride and with anxiety as to where the new suit is to come from—there's a host of little things like the dipper with its handle off, the stew pan so old and nicked that things are bound to "catch on" in it, the stockings already darned beyond the limit, the cracked shade on the living room lamp—all mutely but noisily reminding the housemother of the need of money.

Sometimes when she is happiest, the reminder of some particularly imperative need throws its dark shadow across her mood; sometimes when she's most discontented over other things, some harrowing necessity will seize the opportunity to be the last straw.

Don't Dare Go Forget! Perhaps it isn't possible for people who never lived in a home where the signs were the natural accompaniment of such discoveries to know how blessedly fortunate they are not to have to sigh.

But it is possible for those who have such pictures in their past to know. And I hereby remind them of their duty to remember and be happy. Surely, to fall in such happiness is to prove you don't deserve it. And who knows what that might tempt the fates to do?

individual salad plates. On each ring put a whole slice of canned pineapple drained and salt across with a sharp knife so that it can be easily divided by the salad fork yet does not show the cutting until eaten. Rub a fresh cream cheese through a ricer or colander on the pineapple so that it stands up in light delicate flakes, then with a teaspoon gently put in the hole of the pineapple guava or currant jelly. Finish by sprinkling gently with a French dressing in which lemon juice is used instead of vinegar. The combined flavors of the dressing, pineapple, tart jelly and delicate cheese are deliciously blended. Serve fingers of whole wheat bread and butter with this salad.

Chocolate Pudding—Two and one-half cups milk, three tablespoons flour, three tablespoons sugar, two tablespoons chocolate, one-half cup raisins, one teaspoon butter substitute, one-half teaspoon salt. Asparagus Salad—Take a can of asparagus, drain carefully, so as not to break the spears. Arrange on a platter and set in the ice box to cool. Just before serving garnish the spears above the tips with a chopped relish. Cover the whole with salad dressing.

Brunswick Stew—Stew one chicken until meat leaves bone, then chop and add one pint corn, one pint beans, one and one-half pints tomatoes, one and one-half onions, one tablespoon butter substitute and salt and pepper to taste; boil until all is well done. This is the famous Brunswick stew, the favorite dish of many southerners. It is not very extravagant because it may be reheated and served a number of times.

Tales of the Friendly Forest

When the two little rabbits woke up the next morning after sleeping all right in the old hollow stump they carefully pulled the old wedding stove-pipe hat out of the hole and peeped around. But that wicked owl was nowhere to be seen. He had gone home, as I told you in the last story, and had stayed there, for Mrs. Owl wouldn't let him go out again.

So after a little while, looking here and peering there, Billy Bunny and Uncle Lucky hopped back to the Luckymobile. And after they had let the lightning bugs out of the old lamps they started off for the old gentleman rabbit's house, which as you know, was painted white with a red, white and blue chimney on the roof, and a picket fence all around it, and a hitching post with an iron horse head in front of it.

Now I suppose you are thinking, "Oh, dear me, something dreadfully will happen to those two nice little rabbits before long!" But I won't let it. Not if I have to call out the Home Guard to see that they get home safely.

Well, pretty soon they reached Lettuce avenue and pretty soon after that they came to Carrot street, and when they did they were home, for that's where the old gentleman rabbit's house stood, you know, right on the corner.

"Tra la la, tra la loo. You're home at last, are you?" twittered the little sparrow from her nest under the roof of the front porch.

"Yes, here we are," answered the old gentleman rabbit, waving his old wedding stovepipe hat at Mrs. Sparrow as he gracefully steered the Luckymobile with one paw through the front gate and around the big bed of geraniums on the way to the little garage shed ads—It will pay you.

at the back of the house. And as soon as the Luckymobile was tied up and led with gasoline the two little rabbits went into the house to put on clean collars.

"Gracious me! Here's a letter from Washington!" said the old gentleman rabbit as soon as he entered the library. And then he opened it with a paper cutter which was made out of a bayonet which a friend of his had captured from one of Kaiser Bill's soldiers.

And what do you think that letter said? Listen and you shall hear Uncle Lucky reading it aloud to his little nephew, Billy Bunny.

"Dear Mr. Lucky, I'm writing to you: 'Will you please see that your bank in Rabbittville sells at least one million nine hundred and ninety-nine thousand two dozen and fourteen pairs of Thrift Stamps?' Yours for freedom, UNCLE SAM."

"Well, well, well!" cried the old gentleman rabbit. "I thought we did pretty well with the last carload they sent us, but if my country needs my help, your Uncle Lucky's ready to give it." And then he sat down to the piano and sang:

"I've got the rheumatism in my left hind leg, And it makes me limp so badly that to war I cannot go; But if I can't lick a German, I can lick a million stamps, And I'll do it if it kills me and I get a million cramps."

The Light Ahead.
What lightens labor, sanctifies toil and makes a man good and strong, wise and patient, just and benevolent, both lowly and great, as well as worthy of intelligence and freedom, is the perpetual vision before him of a better world beaming through life's shadows.—Victor Hugo.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What will remove blackheads? Also please give me a remedy that will close the little pores caused by blackheads. I have tried the green soap treatment for blackheads. I use a mixture of green soap, two ounces; distilled witch hazel, two ounces.

This mixture stay on only a few moments, then wash off with hot water. If the green soap irritates the skin, as it sometimes will, use it every other day. Apply a cold cream.

Green soap may be purchased at any drug store. It is not a regular "cake soap," but is of about the consistency of custard.

One each seed case with the point a fine needle. The hardened mass must be pressed or picked out. The empty sac of the gland should then be bathed with a little toilet water and vinegar, or with a very weak solution of carbolic acid and water. Sterilize the needle before using it by dipping into boiling water. Unless the skin and the needle are both thoroughly cleaned the operation is dangerous.

For enlarged pores the following lotion is recommended: Boric acid, one dram; distilled witch hazel, four ounces.

Apply with a piece of old linen or a bit of absorbent cotton.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My hair is thin and full of dandruff. What would you suggest to do to get rid of the dandruff?

THANKFUL READER.
The following dandruff remedy has given satisfaction to many:

To one ounce of sulphur add a quart of soft water and during intervals of several days agitate the mixture repeatedly. After the sulphur has settled to the bottom of the receptacle use the clear liquid. Saturate the head with it every morning and in a few weeks every trace of the dandruff will have disappeared. The hair will become soft and glossy and there will be no return of the old trouble.

This remedy, however, will darken light hair.

Vaseline is also good for removing dandruff and it can be used by anyone. A small quantity should be massaged into the scalp every other night.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am married to a soldier who has just returned from France. He has been

His Love Story

By
MARIE VAN VORST

In a tone different from the light and mocking one that he had hitherto used to the Arab, Tremont began to ask a dozen questions severely, and in his answers to the young Frenchman, Hammet Abou began to make a favorable impression on every one save the Marquise d'Esclignac, who did not understand him. There was a huge bamboo chair on a dais under a Chinese pagoda, and the Marquise d'Esclignac took the chair and sat upright as on a throne. Mimi, who had just been fed, came in thinking her little bells and fawned at the sandals on Hammet Abou's bare feet. After talking with the native, Tremont said to his friends:

"This man says that if he joins a Jewish caravan, which leaves here tomorrow at sundown, he will be taken with these men and leave the city without suspicion, but he must share the expenses of the whole caravan. The expedition will not be without danger; it must be entered into with great subtlety. He is either," said Tremont, "an impostor or a remarkable man."

"He is an impostor, of course," murmured the Marquise d'Esclignac. "Come here, Mimi."

Tremont went on:

"Further he will not disclose to us. He has evidently some carefully laid plan for rescuing Sabron."

There was a pause. Hammet Abou, his hands folded peacefully across his breast, waited. Julia Redmond waited. The Comtesse de la Maine, in her pretty voice, asked quickly:

"But, mes amis, there is a man's life at stake! Why do we stand here talking in the antechamber? Evidently the war office has done all it can for the Capitaine de Sabron. But they have not found him. Whether this fellow is crazy or not, he has a wonderful hypothesis."

A brilliant look of gratitude crossed Julia Redmond's face. She glanced at the Comtesse de la Maine.

"Ah, she's got the heart!" she said to herself. "I know it!" She crossed did wonders for me Why not try it yourself?

There are certain times during youth when the skin is inclined to break out, become pimply, red and rough.

Such blemishes are usually noticed during the change from boyhood to manhood, from girlhood to womanhood. Great care should be taken lest this condition become chronic.

The continued use of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap during such times seldom fail to reduce the inflammation, thus rendering the affliction less conspicuous.

PETEY DINK—FURS AREN'T A FAD AT PALM BEACH—THEY'RE A NECESSITY.

the hall to the Comtesse de la Maine and slipped her arm in hers.

"Has Monsieur de Sabron no near family?"

"No," said the Marquise d'Esclignac from her throne. "He is one of those unfamilied beings who, when they are once taken into other hearts are all the dearer because of their orphaned state."

Her tone was not unkind. It was affectionate.

"Now, my good man," she said to Hammet Abou, in a language totally incomprehensible to him, "money is no object in this question, but what will you do with Monsieur de Sabron? If you find him? He may be an invalid, and the ransom will be fabulous."

The Comtesse de la Maine felt the girl's arm in hers tremble. Hammet Abou answered none of these questions, for he did not understand them. He said quietly to Tremont:

"The caravan starts tomorrow at sundown and there is much to do."

Tremont stood pulling his mustache. He looked boyish and charming, withal serious beyond his usual habit. His eyes wandered over to the corner where the two women stood together.

"I intend to go with you, Hammet Abou," said he slowly. "If it can be arranged. Otherwise this expedition does not interest me."

Two women said:

"Oh, heavens!" at once.

Robert de Tremont heard the note of anxiety in the younger voice alone. He glanced at the Comtesse de la Maine.

"You are quite right, Madame," he said. "A man's life is at stake and we stand chaffing here. I know something of what the desert is and what the natives are. Sabron would be the first to go if it were a question of a brother officer."

The Marquise d'Esclignac got down from her throne, trembling. Her eyes were fixed upon her niece.

"Julia," she began, and stopped.

Madame de la Maine said nothing.

"Robert, you are my godson, and I forbid it. Your mother—"

"—is one of the bravest women I ever knew," said her godson. "My father was a soldier."

Julia withdrew her arm from the Comtesse de la Maine as though to leave her free.

"Then you two girls," said the Marquise d'Esclignac, "thoroughly American for a moment. Most forbid him to go." She fixed her eyes sternly upon her niece, with a glance of entreaty and reproach. Miss Redmond said in a firm voice:

"In Monsieur de Tremont's case I should do exactly what he proposes."

"But he is risking his life," said the Marquise d'Esclignac. "He is not even an intimate friend of Monsieur de Sabron!"

Tremont said, smiling:

"You tell us that he has no brother, marriage. Eh bien, I will pass as his brother."

A thrill touched Julia Redmond's heart. She almost loved him. If, as her aunt had said, Sabron had been out of the question.

"Madame de la Maine," said the Marquise d'Esclignac, her hands shaking. "I appeal to you to divert this headstrong young man from his purpose."

The Comtesse de la Maine was the palest of the three women. She had been quietly looking at Tremont and now a smile crossed her lips that had tears back of it—ones of those beautiful smiles that mean so much to a woman's face. She was the only one of the three who had not yet spoken. Tremont was waiting for her.

Hammet Abou, with whom he had begun in earnest conversation, was answering his further questions. The Marquise d'Esclignac shrugged, threw up her hands as though she gave up all questions of romance, rescue, and disappointed love and foolish girls, and walked out thoroughly wretched, Mimi tinkling at her heels. The Comtesse de la Maine said to Julia:

"Me, chere, what were the words of the English song you sang last night—the song you told me was a sort of prayer. Tell me the words slowly, will you?"

They walked out of the vestibule together, leaving Hammet Abou and Tremont alone.

CHAPTER XXI.

Master and Friend.

Pitchoune, who might have been considered as one of the infinitesimal atoms in the economy of the universe, ran over the sands away from his master. He was an infinitesimal dot on the desert's face. He was only a small Irish terrier in the heart of the Sahara. His little wiry body and his color seemed to blend with the dust. His eyes were dimmed by hunger and thirst and exhaustion, but there was the blood of a fighter in him and he was a thoroughbred. Nevertheless, he was running away. It looked very much like it. There was no one to comment on his treachery; had there been, Pitchoune would not have run far.

It was not an ordinary sight to see on the Sahara—a small Irish terrier going as fast as he could.

Pitchoune ran with his nose to the ground. There were several trails for a dog to follow on that apparently untrodden page of desert history. Which one would he choose? Without a scent a dog does nothing. His nostrils are his instinct. His devotion, ment. In a single blue garment, her black scrawny breast uncovered, the thin veil that the Fellahs wear pushed back from her face, her fine eyes were revealed and she might have been a priestess as she bent over her corn!

"Allah! Allah Akbar!"

DINNER STORIES

Princess Patricia recently related with much disgust the story of an amusing incident which occurred at a certain society function she attended.

It was what is called a "Book Tea," at which each lady guest is required to wear pinned on her dress something to represent the title of some fairly well known book.

One lady (said Princess Patricia) puzzled everybody. She wore, pinned on her bodice, a photograph of her husband.

"None could guess the name of the book she intended the portrait to represent, but after they had all given it up, she told them: 'Life's Handicap!'"

"Never mind," said the fat plumber. "I won't always be at this job."

"Going to retire?" quizzed the thin carpenter.

"None. I'm working on a new invention."

"Well?"

"It is a belt to conserve mental effort."

"Machinery of some kind?"

"No; it is for people to wear when they eat."

"Huh!"

"You see, lots of people are so busy thinking of other things they do not want to be bothered about keeping tabs on their eating."

"Indeed?"

"So I have invented a belt which tells by tension just when a man has eaten a certain amount, and he does not have to stop to bother his head about figuring up the amount."

The Daily Novelette

(Historical crime series.)

Annie Van der Flickerstone, the only daughter of a wealthy juggler of wines, was the heroine of one of the most amazing romances of the XVII century.

Beautiful beyond a vivid imagination, with her golden ringlets circling her head like pretty French-fried doughnuts; her cheeks like pink roses with the mild dew upon them and her eyes like the starry forget-mevers.

Many suitors to her lovely heart and hand were there.

"We cannot live without you!" they cried, thinking of her wealth, and kneeling in the dust at her feet. (This was before brooms were invented.)

But to ops and all of these lovers Annie turned a deaf ear and cold but dainty shoulder, while her father, called Old Van by his poker cronies, gave them the icy stare. (Weather bulletin: Cold and colder.)

Many years of this sort of business kept up until old Van der Flickerstone began to get anxious for fear he might have to support Annie forever.

So the day that Annie reached forty-five her father gave a ball in honor of her 30th birthday.

The ball was one of the most sumptuous ever given in that city, and but one man in that illustrious assemblage of kings, dukes, earls and lords made any impression on Annie's elusive heart. 'Twas the young Earl of Woodchiff.

Old Van der Flickerstone looked with growing disfavor on this union of his daughter to an earl when there were dukes and kings among the suitors and the young Earl, with a gnawing fear at his heart, at last realized that the old man would never let him wed Annie.

Old Van died and everybody, knowing the hatred between him and the earl, believed the earl had committed the crime. Then, too, the earl was in the chocolate filled with strychnine that had killed Old Van.

During the trial Annie nervously clutched a box under her arm, and just as the jury had made up their minds to bring in a "guilty" verdict, Annie, unthinkingly, passed around the box of chocolates, each juror partaking of one.

In the awful confusion that ensued in the violent deaths of the jurors, each after the other, and sometimes two at a time, Annie and the innocent earl escaped.

To this day, nothing more has been heard of them.

Paris Still Favors the Short Skirt

For once Paris is acting sensible in the matter of fashions. The place where every freak fashion and foolish fancy of feminine dress is supposed to be created is clinging tenaciously to the short skirt. American seems to stand alone in her long slit skirt which almost reaches the ground.

The American slave to fashion surely must envy these French girls who are still able to run for a car, step into a machine, or walk on the boulevard with a frisky dog.

These little informal afternoon frocks pictured are the very latest

Parisian fashions to arrive in the United States. The one on the extreme right is a simple frock of green duvetyne. The Parisian touch is brought out in the long-sleeved blouse which is almost unknown in this country. Another novelty which is strange is the white braid trimming on the blouse and the black braid trimming on the skirt. Note also the ruffled bracelets. It is quite the fashion in Paris to wear more than one bracelet on one arm. Four is the usual number, but here only two are worn.

Dark garnet red is the color of the frock on the center. It is fashioned after the latest Parisian style. The little round turban worn with it is something very unique in the millinery line.

Very simple and pure, not a bit Parisian or sophisticated, is the frock on the left. The material is chestnut colored satin. Mesurino is combined with it and white silk corn is applied on the waist forming squares. Again the short sleeve is used and this time a round very American neckline is also employed.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, who has long been prominent in New York for her active work in behalf of women and women workers, is to head the women delegates from the United States to the peace conference. This is not the first time that Mrs. Harriman has been chosen to represent the women of the country. She was the only woman member appointed to the Federal Industrial Relations committee.

Her present mission means more to the women of the world than can be realized at first. Women have been trying since the beginning of the peace plans to get representatives at the peace table and it was but a few days ago that announcement was made in Paris that they had succeeded. That is, four-out of the five powers dominating the peace congress have assented to the request for representation of women on all peace conference committees dealing with the interests of women and children.

According to the cable from Paris, Baron Sonnino, the Italian foreign minister, gave Italy's assent, after the United States, Great Britain and France had declared themselves in favor of the idea.

Japan is the fifth power and the only one to deny women the privilege extended by the other countries.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

In the early or curable stage of cancer there is usually no pain felt by the victim. Nor is the victim's health particularly impaired. Nevertheless, there are signs which cannot escape the attention of an intelligent victim, and certainly any intelligent person who discovers any suspicious signs will lose no time in seeking the opinion of a physician. Ignorant persons will always procrastinate on one pretext or another until the cancer has progressed to a stage which is too often beyond the cure.

For example, any woman over thirty-five years of age who discovers a swelling or lump or hard spot in one breast would be exceedingly unwise to worry about it provided there is a physician within reach. Not every such swelling or lump is cancer, but most of them are.

Any bleeding that occurs after the change of life is a very suspicious sign and should warrant an immediate examination by the physician. Such cases, if neglected until pain begins, are likely to prove incurable. Any irregular or excessive bleeding occurring in a woman of forty or more years should arouse the suspicion of cancer. Pain is the earliest and curable stage of cancer of the womb.

Cancer of the womb is the most frequent and most tragic cancer in women, for it is most likely to occur in the mothers of several children whose lives are precious to those children and to the community.

The X-ray has permanently cured some cancers of the skin and lips, and radium treatment has converted many inoperable cases of cancer into operable cases. Cancer is today, in able cases—that is, brought about enough improvement to make an operation seem reasonably advisable. But neither of these remedies, nor indeed any other remedy known today, should be permitted to encourage postponement of radical surgical treatment, if the diagnosis of cancer is made and the disease has not progressed beyond the curable stage. Rather these aids should be employed after operation for the purpose of preventing recurrence of the cancer.

Enlarged Spleen
Is it possible for the spleen to become so enlarged that it may press on the heart and interfere with its functions? What are the symptoms of an enlarged spleen?

ANSWER—The spleen is found enlarged in the course of various infectious diseases, particularly typhoid fever, septicemia, malaria, also in certain types of so-called "primary" or severe anemia in which we cannot discover the underlying cause. In the first place it is against my ethical principles to suggest symptoms to correspondents, and if that were insufficient enlargement of the spleen produces no symptoms.

A Dangerous Ty
My husband (aged 25) and I (aged 24) have my brother (aged 38) living with us. His doctor has diagnosed tuberculosis. He coughs a great deal, especially in the morning, and expectorates a yellowish sputum. He objects to having a bacteriological test made of the sputum. We keep separate dishes for him and I wash my hands in his dishes. Your brother seems to be of that class. A sink is all right to spit in, provided the sink is devoted exclusively to that purpose. You and your brother are in constant danger from such a selfish guest no matter what precautions you may take. By the way, washing your hands with soap and water will accomplish all that any other antiseptic can.

ANSWER—Certain individuals with tuberculosis really deserve the stigma which the "great white plague" campaign has fastened upon all victims of the disease. ## RETURNED Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY TELLS OF WORK "OVER THERE"

With a statement that the American soldiers were the best fighting troops in the world, Frank H. West, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., gave an illuminating talk before the Open Forum Bible class of the Federated church, last evening, on the work of the Y. M. C. A. among the men sent abroad.

He emphasized particularly the splendid service that General Pershing had done for the nation, in placing every safeguard around the soldiers, keeping their living conditions clean and wholesome, and the morale of the army at a high plane.

"And the most of this job," the speaker said, "General Pershing had put up to the Y. M. C. A. This organization was responsible for all the paid entertainers who were brought over to provide amusement for the boys in the camps, and rest buildings, and the whole physical work in the camps, the educational work, as some of the troops could not read or write, and the care of the camps. These manifold duties were all thrust upon the organization of the Y. M. C. A.," said Mr. West, "by specific army orders, when they were prepared for it and had, in fact, no equipment to do the work."

Worked Against Handicaps. "That it was done in some ways in an inadequate manner, was admitted, by all," he said. "It was done as well as they could do it at the time, and done better than any other organization was fitted to do it, was a well known fact."

Mr. West told of the many problems they had to combat in getting supplies into France. They bought writing paper and chocolate in Switzerland, and the frontiers were closed. Money they could get it across. Then they bought paper in Spain, and that was piled up on the boundaries. At one time they sent agents into all the little villages of France buying up the lot of paper in small shops, that they might have it to write home to their people, just before Christmas.

No Charge During. He stated emphatically that there was never any charge made for writing paper at the Y. M. C. A. huts, and never any charge for cigarettes, biscuits and other refreshments, when there was no offensive on, and that there was thousands of dollars worth of supplies given away to the soldiers at such times. In the ordinary course of service was maintained the same as a quartermaster's store, and supplies were sold at regular prices.

Mr. West had an unusual opportunity to observe conditions in the army camps as he went over with the first contingent of Y. M. C. A. secretaries in June 1917.

Their first job, he said, was to make arrangements for the men at the ports of entry. He described the first exercises which the Y. M. C. A. had in France, and because it was Sunday, it happened to be a religious meeting, conducted in a tent and was packed to overflowing. Before the meeting was over the Y. M. C. A. announced a stunt night and called for volunteers to put on an entertainment. So many offered their services that three good programs were arranged. In this one part of St. Lazare today, Mr. West said, there are at least 20,000 in their reading, writing an entertainment room.

Rest and Bordeaux had also the same equipment. Moving to Training Camps. The next step he showed, was moving up to the training camps, where they were billeted in small villages, sleeping in a room to shelter them. They were sent in tiny freight cars, each holding 40 men, and with 50 cars to a train, up to these villages.

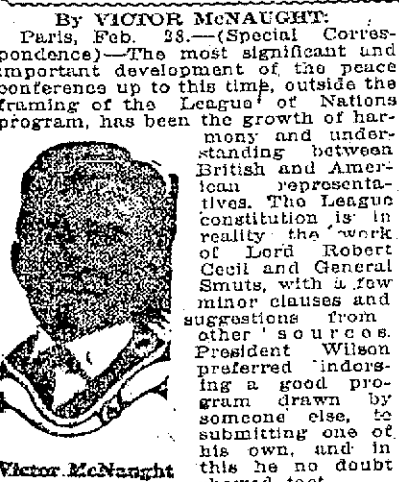

He pointed out that the problem of transportation was a most serious one, as supplies, munitions and men must be gotten to the front when luxuries could not be accommodated. He had been assumed by the "Y," he said, was that of recreation for the leave or vacation of the men. And this was solved by taking over some of the health resorts like Aix la Bains.

Was Sent to Coblenz. Mr. West had been sent with the army of occupation into Germany and was in Coblenz six weeks ago. He closed his informative address by giving the attitude of the German people, toward the war problem. He said that they were cordial and friendly in their welcome to the American soldiers. This he ascribed to various reasons. In the first place they laid the blame for the war on the Kaiser and the war lords and did not blame America for coming into it. Also they had relatives and friends in America, and did not feel the bitterness toward the United States that they did toward France and England. They were glad that Americans were sent in to occupy the country, instead of the other allies, as they expected fair treatment from them, he said.

In passing Mr. West stated that very rigorous rules were made in the army for the soldiers. Mr. West believed that there was no penitence or remorse felt by the Germans over the war, only the fact being realized that they had lost the war.

Britain's Co-Operation Is Vital To Interests Of United States At The Peace Conference

Victor McNaught

By VICTOR McNAUGHT. Paris, Feb. 28. (Special Correspondence)—The most significant and important development of the peace conference up to this time, outside the framing of the League of Nations program, has been the growth of harmony and understanding between British and American representatives.

The League constitution is in reality the work of Lord Robert Cecil and General Smuts, with a few minor clauses and suggestions from other states. President Wilson preferred indorsing a good program drawn by someone else, to submitting one of his own, and in this he no doubt showed tact.

This disposition of English and American delegates to look at things in the same calm and dispassionate way is particularly interesting and significant, when we look ahead to the probable developments of the second phase of the conference, which opens on the return of President Wilson to Paris after his brief stay in Washington.

The second phase will be crowded with practical problems, difficulty and filled with possibilities of friction. Let us examine briefly a few of them:

1. Japan and Australia are watching each other nervously, each anxious for control of islands with the program for mandates.

2. Italy and Jugoslavia both desire the territory on the east coast of the Adriatic. The Italians claim exclusive domination of the Adriatic, the annexation of the north of Dalmatia, the possession of the whole of Dalmatia and a protectorate over Albania. They base their claims on secret treaties made with the allied governments. The Jugoslavs assert that 700,000 of their people would be included within such territorial limits, hence their resistance.

3. Japan makes claims on China, which the Chinese are bound to oppose. The Japanese desire a to have all the concessions in China that the Germans once possessed, and some besides.

Poland is badly divided internally over the claims of two rival factions, each claiming the right to speak for and control the territory.

6. Then comes the problem of fixing the new boundary line between Germany and France. Alsace and Lorraine will again be a bone of contention. Shall she also have the Saar Basin, rich in minerals, and shall she be given some sort of control of the German territory west of the Rhine?

7. What indemnities shall Germany be forced to pay? Each of the allied countries will ask to be reimbursed for its total war expenditures, in addition to the reparation that will be required for damages and for the looting of industrial plants and banks in Belgium and Northern France.

Fixing Armaments. Knotty Problem. These are only a few of the most knotty problems that await the president's return. The fixing of armaments for the various nations, including Germany, has ticklish aspects.

So far the conference sessions have been comparatively mild affairs, but there will be real doings when the time comes to go into rival claims, presented by claimants with high temperatures and feverish pulses.

President Wilson has his League of Nations, they will say, "now let him stand aside while we get what we came for." Premier Huguens of Austria feels that way. So do the Italian delegates. So do some others. The French leaders are, of course, hoping that President Wilson will not interpose any objections to their program for putting Germany in her proper place. They are bound to put Germany there! absolutely determined about it, and they hope that America may not have any foolish notions about mercy.

We do not know what President Wilson thinks about all these issues, except for the knowledge that he wants a square deal for each of the small nations in the allied group, and favors a general settlement that will insure peace instead of sow provocations for a whole flock of new wars. England's attitude is important to us. It must be apparent that England's attitude through the second phase of the peace conference is most important to us. If Lloyd-George and his associates continue in close accord with President Wilson, the settlement will bear the impress of American ideals. Otherwise, America may have little to say about the new order of things in Europe.

In previous articles I have told of the high esteem in which our country and our president are held in Europe. This is all true, speaking in a broad, general way of the feeling of the masses of the people. At the same time, it should be remembered that men in authority in these countries are going to be influenced in their dealings with us by coldly practical considerations.

France and England desire to rebuild their industries and their foreign trade faster than Germany can rebuild hers. Therefore, they are going to keep American manufacturers out of their respective countries as much as they can. We have protected our infant industries; now France and England are going to protect their infant industries.

Recently a company was organized in France to obtain rights to manufacture American articles, on a royalty basis. Half-page advertisements in the "Stars and Stripes" and other officers and doughboys at home to get such manufacturing rights. Big money rewards were offered. Practical American machines and tools are needed in France, but France wishes to make them herself, rather than import them.

Our European friends will not be slow, however, to forget this fact: our aid help was needed to win this war, and American help would be needed if there should come to pass an eventuality that in the eyes of the allied statesmen is a warlike and threatening alliance between Germany and Russia. With America to back them up, England and France and Italy need not worry much about any such combination.

America can be a powerful friend. We have unlimited natural wealth; we are quick and resourceful. Our trade balance during the past three years—our excess of exports over imports—reaches the enormous total of $9,490,000,000. We have loaned more than eight billions to the allied nations, and our interest charges will be large. There is much talk in France of delicately suggesting to us that we not only cancel all these debts, but that we also should make a big contribution to the war expenses of the allied countries. As friendly as we are, and as we shall undoubtedly continue to be, Americans probably will not wish to be as generous as that.

However, we ought to feel complimented over France's good opinion of our liberality and our financial powers, as manifested by such large scale proposals for us.

(The next article in this series will tell of the work of an American Red Cross doctor in the devastated regions of France after the first armistice was signed.)

ANTI-SUFFRAGIST SAYS NAMES NOT O. K'D.

(By Fred L. Holmes)

Madison, Feb. 28.—The circulation of nomination papers to get on the ballot should be discontinued and that the name of a candidate should be placed on the ballot by the payment of a certain fee of from $5 to $25 was the contention of Assemblyman John F. Donnelly, Milwaukee, before house committee on elections Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Francis E. Day, Milwaukee, representing the Wisconsin association opposed to Woman Suffrage, charged Thursday before the assembly committee on elections that the suffragists were making misrepresentations in the literature they are distributing and also using unauthorized signatures. The committee permitted Mrs. Day to speak against the Nelsons, the anti-suffrage and providing for a referendum, although the formal hearing will not be held till next Wednesday.

Carl D. Jackson, chairman of the Wisconsin railroad commission, appeared before the transportation committee of the assembly in favor of the Kandutsch resolution asking congress to relinquish control of the telephone system.

"The whole tendency is to central control at Washington. Men can have but one effect the impairment of our democracy," said Mr. Jackson. He charged that the effect of federal control in this state had been to boost Wisconsin telephone rates 10 per cent. W. L. Smith, Belleville, appeared for the resolution. Glenn Turner, Madison, appeared in favor of the resolution and declared that the subject of federal control should be given a fair trial.
